

Survivors strip off

RAISING MONEY: The Pink Snapdragons dragonboat team (above); and Miss March, Donna Stein, poses in the group's racy calendar.

In the pink for charity

A GROUP of plucky breast cancer survivors have posed for a cheeky calendar to raise funds for charity.

The women are from the Pink Snapdragons dragonboat team which is planning to compete at an international festival in Canada next June.

"It started a bit tongue in cheek but we thought it would be a good way to raise money and it has been a lot of fun," said team member, and Miss March, Donna Stein.

The women posed with pink accessories like flowers and feather boas and were joined in their photo shoots by male models for the calendar, to be launched next month.

It was the idea of team member and photographer Rosie Bozzi.

"She got us all together to watch the movie Calendar Girls with a glass of wine and then sprang it on us that she wanted to do a calendar," Ms Stein said.
